

Macarena Salinas was born in Santiago, capital of Chile, a city surrounded by the mountain range and hills. Her love for nature was cultivated on her trips to the south and north of that country.

Her interest in art developed when she began to study Art at the Catholic University of Chile, where she had the honor of having national prize winners as professors.

The works that Macarena proposes to us are abstract works that connect us with the vital energy of nature and its cycles. She works with painting and in parallel with stoneware, with works connected with materiality and gesture.

She works and lives in Santiago and also in Miami, from where her works arise, influenced by the contrasts of living in those places.

She has exhibited in individual and group exhibitions both in Chile, France, the United States, Korea and Spain, she has represented Chile in Biennials and Art Fairs, since 2019 she belongs to the International Academy of Ceramics (IAC).
