PROFILE

Contemporary Ceramist | Educator

Young Mi Park is a contemporary ceramist recognized for her dedication to modern ceramic expression rooted in traditional Korean ceramic techniques. She earned her Master of Fine Arts in Ceramics from Dankook University in the Republic of Korea, where she developed a practice grounded in craftsmanship and cultural storytelling.

Over the course of her career, Park has also participated in more than three hundred international art fairs, academic forums, and group exhibitions, including twelve solo exhibitions. In many of these settings, she has contributed not only as an exhibiting artist but also as an educator and collaborator.

Her work has been acquired by a range of notable institutions. These include the Yanggu White Porcelain Museum, Asan Medical Center, and Gallery Damian. In addition, her ceramics are featured in various architectural and design studio collections.

Park is an active member of several professional organizations. These include the Korea Fine Arts Association, Songpa Artists Association, ISCAEE Korea, the Korean Ceramic Society, and the Korean Women Ceramic Artists Association.
