Biography

Elahe Hosseini was born in 1986 in Tehran. Her passion for art began in childhood and led her to pursue studies at an art-focused high school. Deeply enthusiastic about art education, she started teaching and running creativity workshops for children and teenagers.

Hosseini graduated from Azad university, east Tehran branch and get her bachelor's degree in Illustration .Her desire to merge illustration with other art forms led her into the field of ceramics, where she also received academic training.

Her artistic work includes the creation of traditional and colorful ceramic tiles, including underglaze and overglaze techniques. She has also participated in public art projects such as Nowruz Egg Painting festivals and urban murals, commissioned by the Tehran Municipality.

She continued her academic education in master's degree in Illustration from the Islamic Azad University, Science and Research Branch. After graduation, she actively pursued a career in ceramics, participating in numerous group exhibitions and artistic events.

Hosseini runs a personal ceramics and pottery studio where she teaches children and teenagers, sharing her knowledge and guiding them in the art of ceramics. Her membership in various professional associations demonstrate her commitment and expertise in this field.
